Guster the dragon lay in the mouth of his cave. He were itching. His back itched and his belly itched. His fingers and his toes itched. Even his eyes and ears and nose itched. It were unbearable.

Guster felt like this every autumn. While the leaves on the trees flushed into their autumn finery, Guster's green summer scales slowly changed to copper. This were a mountain dragon trick which kept them safe from human eyes. Humans couldn't spot no green scales against the grass, red scales against autumn leaves or white scales against snow. Guster thought that them humans must be well stupid.

PSHE

Remember, the theme for this year's Mental Health Awareness week was kindness. For PSHE I am asking you to write a letter to someone you care about. In this letter I would like you to compliment that person and explain what it is that makes them so awesome. This letter can be written to anyone, it could be for a parent or carer, a sibling, one of your grandparents, a teacher or anyone that you know. If you are writing a letter to someone who doesn't live with you, ask your adult if it can be posted or delivered next time you go on a walk for exercise.

Good luck and enjoy your weekend. ☺ We both miss you and can't wait to see you soon!

Just in case you haven't seen it already, here is a message from all the staff at Blowers Green:
