Chapter One
Far Too Young to be a Hero

Death was coming. It would fall from the skies like a hail of deadly meteors – not dropped by some malevolent force from outer space, but spawned from the iron bellies of Hitler's deadly

 Luftwaffe bombers.

Sirens wailed their nightly warning, conducting a drumbeat of frightened feet across the pavements of London's East End. Streams of panicked citizens spewed through the narrow streets; children screamed their resistance as mothers and fathers hauled them through jostling crowds. Wardens barked orders and pointed instructions at the hordes, but few people paid any attention. They were too fearful of the fire and fury that was roaring over the English

 Channel towards them. Terror had already turned pretty, young faces into ugly balls of fear, and the eyes of thousands turned constantly upwards, pulled wide and white by dread.

Science

Space X (a private American company) have just sent people to the International Space Station. Thi made news because it is the first time American's have sent astronauts to space without using a Russian Soyuz rocket. This new rocket is also less wasteful and the rocket lands itself on the ground so it can be reused. Follow this link for more information:

I would like you to create a news article in your book about the rocket launch. All information you need can be found on that website.
